Move Over Leno and Letterman, Oakland County Show is Stiff Competition!!!!

Rochester Hills, MI. –March 11, 2008- If you live in Oakland County and are looking for some good, solid information and entertainment, look no further than your local Public Access channel. The show, "Community Corner," hosted by Rochester Hills residents Aaron Castle, Ryan Gray and David DeWitt Taylor is getting rave reviews!

"In celebration of March as National Developmental Disabilities month, this is a perfect opportunity to highlight some of the outstanding things that people who are supported by Community Living Services are doing," said CLS/Oakland County Executive Director Annette Downey. "Our organization's philosophy of "Whatever It Takes" is truly one that we live by everyday. We believe in a self-determined life for ALL people, no matter the disability."

All three guys have known each other for years and when they found out about Community Media Network's (located in Troy) television production classes they signed up right away.

"I loved those classes," said Gray. "I learned so much about how a TV station works and then when I found out we could have our own show, we started coming up with ideas immediately!"

Since their show started several months ago, they've been busy lining up various guests and are hoping to get some 'big' talent interested such as local TV news personalities.

"Someday I'd like to work at Channel 4, working on the news shows, community events, politics or sports, I love it all!" said Gray.

When the trio isn't scheduling interviews, they are very busy. Taylor is also a radio personality at WXOU 88.3 FM located on the Oakland University campus and involved with the OU Swim Club.

Castle likes to be behind the scenes of their TV show and wants to pursue a career in creating video games. "I'd like to create websites too because it's a way to show how creative I can be and I just like using computers," said Aaron.

Ryan and David both utilize supports and services provided by Community Living Services, Inc. located in Oakland County. CLS provides supports and services to adults and children and is funded through the Oakland County Community Mental Health Authority. For more information, visit our web site at www.comlivserv.com.
